The Neptune Inn is a historic pub in London that is said to be haunted by the ghosts of sailors who died at sea. The pub has a long and colorful history, and its walls are adorned with maritime artifacts and memorabilia. Visitors to the Neptune Inn often report seeing the ghosts of sailors, and some even claim to have heard their voices.

One of the most famous ghosts at the Neptune Inn is that of a young sailor named Jack. Jack was a member of the crew of the HMS Victory, which was sunk in the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805. Jack's body was never recovered, and his ghost is said to haunt the Neptune Inn to this day.

Another well-known ghost at the Neptune Inn is that of a woman named Mary. Mary was a barmaid at the pub in the early 19th century. She was brutally murdered by a jealous customer, and her ghost is said to haunt the pub's basement.

The Neptune Inn is a popular destination for ghost hunters and paranormal enthusiasts. Many people have reported seeing the ghosts of sailors and other spirits at the pub. Some visitors have even claimed to have been touched or pushed by the ghosts.

Whether or not you believe in ghosts, the Neptune Inn is a fascinating place to visit. The pub's long and colorful history, combined with its reputation for being haunted, makes it a unique and unforgettable destination.
