Twohy was born in New York City, but she grew up in the San Francisco Bay Area. She has always been fascinated by nature, and she spent her childhood exploring the local parks and beaches. Twohy's love of nature led her to pursue a degree in environmental studies at the University of California, Berkeley. After graduating from college, Twohy worked as a field biologist for several years. During this time, she gained a deep understanding of the natural world and the challenges facing our planet.

Early Career

In 2010, Twohy founded her own production company, Swallowtail Films. Her first film, "The Last Flight of the Monarch," was released in 2012. The film follows the migration of the monarch butterfly, and it highlights the threats facing this iconic species. "The Last Flight of the Monarch" was a critical and commercial success, and it helped to raise awareness about the importance of monarch conservation.

Twohy's second film, "Winged Wonders," was released in 2015. The film explores the world of birds, and it features stunning footage of some of the most beautiful and fascinating birds on the planet. "Winged Wonders" was also a critical and commercial success, and it helped to inspire a new generation of birdwatchers.

Recent Work

In 2018, Twohy released her third film, "Oceans Apart." The film explores the impact of climate change on the world's oceans. "Oceans Apart" is a powerful and moving film, and it has helped to raise awareness about the urgent need to address climate change.

Twohy is currently working on her fourth film, "The Jaguar's Shadow." The film follows the journey of a young jaguar as it grows up in the Amazon rainforest. "The Jaguar's Shadow" is a beautiful and intimate film, and it sheds light on the importance of protecting the Amazon rainforest.

Conservation Advocacy

In addition to her work as a filmmaker, Twohy is also a passionate advocate for wildlife conservation. She is a member of the advisory board of the National Wildlife Federation, and she has worked with a number of organizations to protect endangered species and habitats.

Twohy believes that storytelling is a powerful tool for change, and she uses her films to inspire people to take action to protect the planet. She is a true voice for wildlife and the environment, and she is making a real difference in the world.

Swallowtail Brenna Twohy is a rising star in the world of nature documentary. Her films are beautiful, engaging, and thought-provoking.
