Gameplay

The Shadow of Troy is played on a map of the Aegean Sea and surrounding regions. Players start the game with a small number of units and must expand their empires by conquering new territory. Units can be moved by land or sea, and they can attack enemy units or cities. Players can also build new cities, which provide resources and production bonuses.

The game is divided into a series of turns. Each turn, players can perform a number of actions, such as moving units, attacking enemy units, building cities, or researching new technologies. Players must carefully manage their resources and make wise decisions in order to succeed.
